Ensuring the climate of order and public tranquility is also achieved through citizens' knowledge of the rules of administrative law. Thus, the communication carried out in the public space can be better deciphered and understood if we know how the administrative activity of the state or local communities is carried out. At the same time, when the legal norms are incidental, the legal liability of the civil servant, as well as of the public authorities, can also be incurred.

Good governance in the administration depends on the existing administrative law reports, the administrative act issued in accordance with the existing legal norms, as well as the civil servant. Through the studies that will be carried out and included in this panel, we propose to debate theoretical and practical aspects related to the delegation of competences, standardization, as well as the outsourcing of public services. Also, bringing to the attention of conference participants the existing policies and strategies in the field of public administration would contribute to a better knowledge of the concept of governance and then, to making decisions that underpin the sustainable development of communities.
